

survey diagnosis & proposals

Whether repair work is necessary should be the first consideration, followed by an assessment of the traditional or reversible techniques available to ensure the continued life of the material or structural element.

An essential first stage of any report and quotation is to determine the cause of the problem

This will involve a condition survey which can range from a simple visual inspection and hammer test through to core sampling and borescope inspection.

We are suitably experienced to inspect and advise on the most suitable methods of repairing concrete, stone and brick.

Metropolitan Stone offer a survey, diagnosis and proposal service to building owners, estate managers and consultants to inspect and advise on suitable, practical and economical systems of repair and conservation. From facade restoration through to bird repellent systems we can give professional considered advice on a variety of restoration and repair problems.
